The Prince Edward County Sheriff's Office has installed Flock Cameras in and around Prince Edward County.

Flock cameras, utilizing AI-powered license plate readers, have become a vital tool for law enforcement agencies across the United States. These cameras capture license plates and key vehicle details, such as make, color, and notable characteristics, to help deputies identify vehicles linked to criminal activity. With over 5,000 communities across 49 states using Flock Safety cameras, they have assisted in a significant number of arrests and crime solutions.

The cameras work by capturing still images of passing vehicles at fixed locations, which are then analyzed using machine learning to extract important details. This information is stored in a central server, allowing law enforcement agencies to access and search the data to solve crimes.

Some notable achievements of Flock Safety cameras include a 34.5 % reduction in crime rates in Boulder, Colorado, and assisting police officers in making 41 arrests within six months of installation in Raleigh, North Carolina.
